RECOMMENDATION AND CHARACTERISTICS OF OLEKSII YERMAKOV

I am a representative of the Irish company Wall Steel Limited, specializing in the fabrication of steel structures, and also the head of organization and control for their erection on construction sites across Europe. Oleksii Yermakov worked as a Setting Out Engineer (Survey Engineer) and performed his duties with a high level of professional competence, precision, and responsibility. In the scope of his professional activities, he carried out a wide range of surveying and related construction tasks on complex construction sites in the fields of high-rise and steel construction.

The main tasks performed by Oleksii Yermakov during our collaboration at the data center construction project in Kelsterbach, Germany, included:

- Conducting geodetic measurements for the control and monitoring of concrete and steel structures.
- Measuring and setting out construction elements in accordance with design and execution drawings.
- Precise control of specified and actual values, especially in cases of deviations from structural axes, heights, and fastening points.
- Creating and processing as-built and existing condition drawings in various formats.
- Collaboration and coordination with construction managers, engineers, and subcontractors to ensure compliance with technical specifications, execution details, and safety.
- Planning, preparation, and execution of layout for assembly works.
- Documentation of completed works through regular reports, photo documentation, and digital transfer of measurement data.
- Technical analysis of problems related to discrepancies between plan and reality, and development of practical on-site solutions.
- Proficient use of professional tools and software.
- Performing work in a multi-level industrial and administrative building with complex structures, taking into account safety requirements with a high degree of self-organization and responsibility while working as part of a team.

Oleksii is known for his meticulous approach, problem-solving skills, and commitment to achieving accurate results. His ability to adapt to complex project requirements and effectively collaborate with the team significantly impacted the construction site's operations.

I highly recommend Oleksii Yermakov as an experienced and reliable professional whose expertise in surveying and construction layout makes him a valuable asset for any project or organization.
